JAMES McARDELL.

1 IN the reign of the first George, mezzotint engraving, although it numbered amongst its practitioners such men as John Smith, the Fabers, and Andrew Miller, shared the fate of the higher forms of art, and was little regarded. About the middle of the century a French critic,¹ who was also a painter, wrote that an art so peculiarly English, was on the decline in this country. Little did M. Rouquet suspect, when he gave his opinion, that, lately come to London, there was an Irish youth destined to carry the art to a height it had not previously attained. Moreover, McArdell was the founder of the great school of mezzotint engravers of the eighteenth century, a leader of men whose works delight by their exceeding beauty of execution, and astonish by their wonderful exactness to the original paintings.

Of McArdell's personal history, the details, given by Strutt and Dodd, are scanty and inaccurate. He was born in Cow Lane, afterwards Greek Street, Dublin,¹ in 1729, or at earliest the latter end of 1728, and became a pupil of John Brooks, who was the foremost among a school of Irish engravers then working in Dublin. Brooks, hitherto known as a line engraver, took up mezzotint about 1740, and persuaded one of the ablest practitioners of the art in London, Andrew Miller, to collaborate with him in Dublin. Brooks produced, at Sir Isaac Newton's Head on Cork-hill, capital prints, in which he was assisted at first by Miller, afterwards by his pupils, McArdell, Houston, Purcell, Spooner, and Ford. A few of McArdell's first beginnings are extant; such as a head of Thomas Birch (the reverse of an unfinished print by the younger Faber); a portrait of Primate Boulter, adapted from a print of Bishop Howard by his master Brooks; and another of the Princess Carolina Elizabeth (a copy of an engraving by John Simon).

About 1746, McArdell, with Brooks and Houston, migrated to London, to be afterwards followed by Purcell and Spooner.

In 1747 he scraped a half-length of Bishop

Secker, published in London by M. Overton and P. Brookes ; also a humorous print (probably after his own drawing), called "Teague's Ramble at Charing Cross," published there by Jeffreys and Herbert, who were the London agents for Brooks's prints.

After that year, however, master and pupils parted company. Brooks took to china enamelling at Battersea, and eventually to drink, ending his days in beggary. Several of McArdell's fellow-pupils went the same way. Charles Spooner, a Wexford man of rare gifts, was probably the worst. Richard Houston, who at first rivalled McArdell, started in a good position for himself, but died a mere servant of the print-sellers. The vicious and extravagant habits of Richard Purcell also delivered him into the hands of the dealers, and he soon degenerated into a mere copyist of other engravers' plates.

Of McArdell's kindness to these gifted but terribly trying countrymen, one touching proof remains. When Spooner lay dying, towards the close of 1767, he asked to be buried beside his old fellow-pupil at Hampstead, and his wish was gratified. McArdell also patiently endured their unpleasant habit of copying his plates.

Indeed, it was impossible to quarrel with McArdell. The only approach to anything of the kind recorded of him was when Horace Walpole professed to feel “extremely angry” at hearing that the engraver had told of the print he was doing for him after the well-known portrait by Reynolds, and wrote to Grosvenor Bedford (9 May, 1759), requesting him at once to take away the picture from McArdell and stop the engraving.¹ However, explanations followed, and the engraving was duly completed.

In 1748 McArdell engraved the portrait of Charles Bancks, a Swedish miniaturist, under the supervision of a little French oddity, the Chevalier Descazeaux, whose head was so turned by vanity and conceit that he imagined himself a wonderful poet and an exalted but hardly used individual. One can easily imagine the quiet amusement with which McArdell received the chevalier’s “instructions.” Of him, McArdell executed two etchings, which are his only known works in that method. In the same year he did John Cartwright, a village “character,” in which he slyly introduced a magpie perched upon the frame. These prints show that McArdell was fully endowed with the humour so strikingly characteristic of the true-born Irishman.

In 1749 he scraped the portrait of Lady Boyd, daughter-in-law of the unfortunate Earl of Kilmarnock, after Allan Ramsay, then one of the fashionable portrait-painters in London; and, after Hogarth, a half-length of that fine old sea-captain, Thomas Coram, the originator of the Foundling Hospital.

The following year he engraved the portrait of the Duke of Dorset, then Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, after a picture painted some years before by Kneller. Young as he was, McArdell had now fully reached the level of the best of his contemporaries in the practice of his art. Then he must have felt the impulse to do something still better, and, like Gainsborough, went back to Van Dyck. He obtained permission from the Duke of Grafton to engrave Van Dyck's famous picture of the two sons of the first Duke of Buckingham, then in Kensington Palace, and in 1752 produced from it an admirable work instinct with truth and life. This engraving at once gave McArdell the lead in his profession, and he never looked back. It brought him besides considerable practice. Like most of the engravers of his time, McArdell, when he felt his footing sure, opened a shop and sold his own prints. He lived in Covent Garden, first (by 1751) at the "Golden Head next Southampton Street"; but six years later he is found at the corner of Henrietta Street under the same sign.¹

In 1754 appeared the first prints executed by McArdell after Sir Joshua Reynolds. These were the Earl and Countess of Kildare, published first in Dublin by McArdell's fellow-pupil, Michael Ford, who had not removed to London; and Lady Charlotte Fitzwilliam (of which a reproduction is given). The latter print was published by Reynolds himself.

McArdell engraved thirty-eight portraits after Reynolds. Of these, the following may be referred to as brilliant renderings: Lady Anne Dawson; Mrs. Bonfoy; Mrs., afterwards Lady Chambers (which we reproduce); Lady Elizabeth Montagu; Mrs. Hannah Horneck; Anne Day, afterwards Lady Fenhoulet; Maria, Countess Waldegrave; Horace Walpole; Admiral John Lockhart; and John, Earl of Rothes. It was of these and other prints of McArdell's—marvellous "facsimiles in black and white" as they have been happily called—in which the painter's character and charm were interpreted with a brilliance and precision previously unknown, that Sir Joshua used the memorable words: “By this man I shall be immortalized.”

The merits of some other portrait-painters more likely to be undervalued by future generations owing to the enormous reputation of Reynolds were also recorded by the scraper of McArdell. Among them was Reynolds's master, Thomas Hudson. McArdell engraved twenty-one of Hudson's portraits, the most remarkable being the Duchess of Ancaster, dated 1757, which we reproduce. This charming print should prove that the much-abused Hudson was not unworthy of being Reynolds's first instructor. “The face,” in the opinion of one critic, “is finished like a miniature, the feathers and every detail of the dress brought out with marvellous skill”; “one can almost feel the softness of the satin,” writes another. There can be but one opinion as to the extraordinary merits of this particular “Hudson.”

McArdell likewise engraved many portraits after Ramsay, Mercier, Gainsborough, Hogarth, Benjamin Wilson, Cotes, Hoare, Liotard, and others of his day.

We have already mentioned his rendering of Van Dyck's picture of George Villiers and his brother Francis as one among the many fine plates scraped by him from the masterpieces of an earlier day. After the same master he did the bold and brilliant engraving of the Countess of Southampton, to be afterwards referred to; the equally fine one of Lord John and Lord Bernard Stuart, the young sons of Esmé, Duke of Lennox; and that of Helena Fourment, or Forman, Rubens's second wife. A delightful transcript from Rubens himself is that of the painter with his wife and child walking in a garden.

About the last-named print, James Northcote has the following anecdote :

“James McArdell, the mezzotint engraver, having taken a very good print from the portrait of Rubens, came with it one morning to Sir Joshua Reynolds, to inquire if he could inform him particularly of the many titles to which Rubens had had a right, in order to inscribe them properly under his print, saying, he believed that Rubens had been knighted by the kings of France, Spain, and England; was Secretary of State in Flanders, and of the Privy Council in Spain; and had been employed in a Ministerial capacity from the Court of Madrid to the Court of London, to negotiate a treaty of peace between the two crowns, and that he was also a Magistrate of Antwerp, etc.

“Dr. Johnson happened to be in the room with Sir Joshua at the time, and, understanding McArdell’s inquiry, interfered rather abruptly, saying, ‘Pooh! pooh! put his name alone under the print; Peter Paul Rubens. That is full sufficient, and more than all the rest.’ This advice of the Doctor was accordingly followed¹ [to some extent].”

In his interpretations of Rembrandt, McArdell was no less happy. Those of our readers who visited the McArdell exhibition in 1886 will remember how a comparison of the Dutch Interior with the original drawing by the master (both lent by Sir Francis Seymour Haden), showed with what remarkable fidelity the engraver scraped his plate.

McArdell had undertaken the engraving of some of the fourteen pictures by Lely, known as the “Windsor Beauties”; but he did not live to complete more than three: the noble-looking Elizabeth Hamilton (afterwards the Comtesse de Grammont), a superb example of his work ; the “famous and indeed incomparable beauty” Mrs. Jane Myddelton ; and that clever but scheming lady politician, Henrietta, Countess of Rochester. It is quite possible that, in undertaking the portraits of beautiful women, McArdell sought relief from the dreary task of engraving those of Georgian divines and respectable nonentities ; he certainly did as many ladies’ portraits as he could, in this respect following the time of Charles II., rather than that immediately preceding his own. This predilection was shared by succeeding engravers, more especially by the two Watsons and John Raphael Smith.

With the accession of George III. came a happier day for art generally. Once more royalty extended its patronage to painters and engravers, and has since continued to do so. McArdell engraved portraits of the young king and his homely little consort. Moreover, George III. was himself a keen print-collector, as the cabinets in Windsor Castle testify.

Occasionally McArdell drew his own designs and engraved from them. Of this class are the character portraits of three famous actors, each in excellent drawing, and full of spirit. Quin is represented in his favourite character of Falstaff; Garrick as Peter Puff the auctioneer in Foote's comedy of "Taste"; while Charles Blakes, the Soho hatter and hosier, who delighted the town by his inimitable personations of the French fop, is seen as Monsieur le Médecin, with the huge muff carried by physicians in those days.

In the midst of a brilliant career, McArdell was suddenly struck down, and died in Henrietta Street in his thirty-seventh year on 2 June, 1765. Three days afterwards he was buried in the peaceful little churchyard of Hampstead. With his keen perception of the beautiful, McArdell must have loved a place which all our best artists have loved; which at a later day John Constable called "sweet Hampstead," and so often painted in all its varied aspects.

A stone once marked his grave, but all trace of it had disappeared in the first decade of the nineteenth century.¹ He died intestate and a bachelor, his estate being administered to by his brother Philip McArdell.²

He left at least five unfinished plates; two after

Reynolds—those of Lord and Lady Cathcart—being completed by Houston. These passed, with most of the others, into the hands of Robert Sayer, the Fleet Street printseller, who worked them for profit rather than for art, issuing worn and retouched impressions, and even falsifying proofs. Some of the plates were altered by another head being put in, and a new name inserted in the inscription space. Thus Sir Philip Honywood (state III.) has been transformed into Prince Ferdinand of Brunswick; a late state of Admiral Richard Tyrrell has been made to represent another gallant seaman, Sir Charles Hardy, and so forth.

McArdell was followed, as we have already said, by a brilliant band of engravers, amongst them Richard Earlom (his pupil) Thomas Watson, William Dickinson, John Jones, Valentine Green, John Dean, and the great John Raphael Smith; while of his own countrymen may be mentioned Edward Fisher, John Dixon, and James Watson (probably another pupil). “In examining their works,” to borrow the words of an excellent critic,¹ “one finds some distinguished by a style of power and boldness, others by one of delicacy and grace, but McArdell only excelled in both. His Countess of Southampton, after Van Dyck, is an example of the first; his Lady Mary Coke, after Ramsay, is one of the second." We give reproductions of both prints.

Though no memorial now marks his grave, one monument to McArdell yet remains which cannot perish; we allude to his portrait, engraved by Earlam, after a drawing by himself made in the last year of his life, a reproduction of which forms the frontispiece to the present volume. There is depicted James McArdell, his right hand holding a scraper, the little instrument with which he achieved so much, before him his plate of the Van Dyck picture, then at Blenheim, of "Time Clipping the Wings of Love"; "his face is expressive of genial kindness, of firm good sense, keen observation, and bold intelligence; expressive of what he was, a great artist and a good man."¹

In 1886 the Burlington Fine Arts Club gave an exhibition of McArdell's works, the late John Chaloner Smith (a non-member) contributing nearly the whole of the collection.

Chaloner Smith also wrote an appreciation of McArdell in the "Dublin University Review," (vol. ii., pp. 331-341), a monthly which deserved a longer existence. To this and the same writer's monumental descriptive catalogue of "British Mezzotinto Portraits," we are much indebted. For permission to use the annotated copy of the last-named book in the Print Room at the British Museum, our obligations are great. The exhibition catalogues of the Burlington Fine Arts Club have been found invaluable. Some information has likewise been gleaned from the lists of McArdell's works given by Thomas Dodd in his "Memoirs of English Engravers," 1550-1800, vol. ix. ff. 281-302 (Additional MS., British Museum, No. 33,402).

The prints seen in the British Museum are indicated by the letters B. M. appended to each state, followed by other letters denoting a particular section, collection, or grangerized book. Thus E. = Engraver; M. = Master; P. = Portrait; while Cheyl. refers to an example in the noble collection of mezzotints bequeathed last year to the nation by the late Lord Cheylesmore.

Impressions have also been seen at the Victoria and Albert Museum, South Kensington (V. and A.).

Where a print, or a state of a print, has not been seen by the compiler, the references J.C.S., Hamilton, or Burlington Fine Arts Club exhibition have been employed, meaning that the same are described in J. Chaloner Smith's "British Mezzotinto Portraits," in Dr. Edward Hamilton's "Catalogue raisonné of the Engraved Works of Sir Joshua Reynolds" (edit. 1884), or in the exhibitions promoted by the Burlington Fine Arts Club in 1886 and 1902.

Mr. H. S. Theobald, K.C., Mr. Henry Percy Horne and Mr. Fritz Reiss have kindly favoured the compiler with lists of the mezzotints by McArdell in their possession.

The following abbreviations are used in the catalogue :

W.L.=whole length; dir.=directed; f.=front;
l.=left; r.=right.

The measurements are given in inches and (unless otherwise stated) are taken from the edges of the subject engraved, the upright dimension being cited first.

CATALOGUE OF PORTRAITS

Before 1747.

I. BIRCH, THOMAS.

After J. Wills.

Born 1705 of Quaker parentage. Became a clergyman of the Church of England. Author and editor of valuable historical works; one of the secretaries of the Royal Society. Killed by a fall from his horse, 1766.

To waist, dir. and looking f.; wig, bands, black gown, with his hands on a book.

- I. Early unfinished impression, head and shoulders only; evidently trial proof. $6\frac{1}{4}$ by $5\frac{7}{8}$. B.M. (E.).
- II. Before inscription, uncleared edge. 12 by $9\frac{1}{2}$. B.M. (E.; Cheyl., two impressions).
- III. Inscribed: "Dr. Burch. Engraved in Ireland, by James M'Ardell." An example was shown by J. Chaloner Smith, at the Burlington Fine Arts Club exhibition of McArdell's works in 1886.
- IV. The name of "Dean Swift" substituted for that of "Dr. Burch." J. C. S.

Reversed copy of an unfinished print by the younger Faber.

Before 1747.

2. BOULTER, HUGH.

After M. Dahl.

Born 1672, died 1742. Bishop of Bristol and Dean of Christ Church, Oxford, 1719; Archbishop of Armagh (Primate of Ireland), 1724.

Nearly w. l., sitting in his episcopal robes, holding a large book, which rests on his knees. $12\frac{1}{4}$ by $10\frac{1}{8}$.

Engraved inscription: "The most Rev^d Father in God his Grace Doctor Hugh Boulter Lord Archbishop of Armagh Primate & Metropolitan of all Ireland, and one of the Lords Justices of the said Kingdom. Sold by I^{no} Brooks at S^r Isaac Newton's head on Cork Hill Dublin."

Chaloner Smith, who contributed an impression to the Burlington Fine Arts Club exhibition of McArdell's works in 1886, says that this plate was "altered by McArdell from Brooks's plate of Robert Howard, Bishop of Elphin, and is one of his earliest works."

Before 1750.

3. CAROLINA ELIZABETH, PRINCESS.

After P. Mercier.

Third daughter of George II. Born 1713; died, unmarried, 1757. A hopeless passion for Lord Hervey, combined with grief at her mother's death, hastened her end.

Fully to knees, standing, facing f.; pearls in hair, which falls one long tress in f. of l. shoulder; low embroidered dress; frilled sleeves; jewelled ornaments on bodice; l. hand holding up ermined robe; coronet on cushion on stand to l.; trees to l.; a pillared arch is behind. 13 $\frac{3}{4}$ by 9 $\frac{3}{4}$.

This is evidently a copy by McArdell of John Simon's print, No. 33, in J. C. Smith's "British Mezzotinto Portraits," pt. iii., p. 1075; probably the second state. (An impression was shown by Mr. Walter F. Tiffin at the Burlington Fine Arts Club exhibition of McArdell's works in 1886).

1747.

4. SECKER, THOMAS.

Born 1693, died 1768. Bishop of Bristol 1735, of Oxford 1737; Archbishop of Canterbury 1758.

Nearly to waist, in scrolled oval frame, entablature beneath, looking to f., in episcopal robes. Arms in centre of inscription space. 12 by 10.

- I. In engraved lettering (with arms of the Oxford see): "T. Willes Pinxit. J. M. Ardell Fecit, 1747. The Right Reverend Father in God Thomas Secker S. T. P. Lord Bishop of Oxford. Sold by M. Overton opposite Fetter Lane end Fleet Street & P. Brookes facing Southampton Street in y^e Strand. Price 1^s 6^d." B. M. (P.; Pennant; Cheyl.).
- II. The plate retouched, and somewhat altered, arms of the Primacy substituted; inscription reads: "J^s M^o Ardell Fecit The most Reverend Father in God, Thos^s Secker, L. L. D. by Divine Providence Archbishop of Canterbury, Primate and Metropolitan of all England. And one of his Majesty's most Honourable Privy Council. Done from an Original Picture, by T. Hudson, in the Vestry of St James's Church. London. Printed for Rob^t Sayer, Printseller opposite Fetter Lane, Fleet Street. Price 2s." B.M. (P.; Cheyl., two impressions); V. and A.

Bromley (p. 355) thought these different plates; but an "impression from the plate in the process of transmutation" was exhibited by Chaloner Smith at the Burlington Fine Arts Club exhibition of McArdell's works in 1886. It is difficult, however, to understand why the painting is assigned to T. Willes (? J. Wills) in state I, and to T. Hudson in state II.

- III. The plate again reworked; patches introduced to counterfeit proof; at bottom "N^o 75." B. M. (Cheyl.).

5. BANCKS, CHARLES. After Himself.

Miniature-painter; practised his art in England, 1746-92. For Descazeaux, see No. 197.

To waist, in panelled oval, dir. l., wig, neckerchief. 4⁵/₈ by 2⁷/₈.

Inscribed round frame: "1748. Charle Bancks Gentilhomme Suedois Peintre a Lencre de L'achine, en Mignature." Outside frame: "Hic florescit candida amicitia. Florescat ubique Christiana Fides. Florescant piæ virtutes. Florescant inclitæ Artes." At bottom are arms, doves with serpents' heads as supporters, and inscribed on scrolls in capital letters, "Serpens. Nodus Amicitiae. Columba. Pignus Amicitiae," followed by "C. Bancks pinxt. J. Mac Ardell Fecit.

Cij voye's mon amy non faux.
Entems de Paix, entems de Guerre.
Toujours Le même, en Angleterre,
Banck's L'Appelle de Descazeaux.

Le Chevalier Du Halley Descazeaux dedit, struxit, et inscripsit. 1748." B. M. (Collectanea Biographia, vol. v., No. 154, vol. xxvii., No. 55; P., Foreigners in England; Society of Artists, I, 102; Cheyl., three impressions). One of the Cheylesmore examples has inscription in English verses, etc., printed in letterpress outside plate at top and bottom of page, as follows:

DESCAZEUAZIANLY. Rhymed,
Without vain Ostentation of Skilfulness superlative; or Boast, proud, of superior Judg-

1748.

6. CARTWRIGHT, JOHN. After S. Elmer.

To waist, in oval, dir. l., looking f., wearing his hat, hair rough and tangled ; pointing with thumb of l. hand ; on r. of frame a magpie is sitting. $11\frac{1}{4}$ by $8\frac{7}{8}$.

Inscribed : "John Cartwright, of Farnham, in Surry, Gardiner & Florist, 1748.

"What kind of Sat'rif. Nature gives alone,
Devoid of ev'ry Help, in Cartwright's shwon :
Who always ready others Faults to spy,
For Ridicule does mark 'em with his Eye ;
Bursts into Rants, that wou'd be stings severe,
Could He in proper Language touch the Ear ;
And yet not inexpressive in his Wit,
For in each Muscle of his Face tis Writ.

S: Elmer, Pinx^t. J. M^cArdell Fecit."

There are at present only three impressions known of this print. One impression was lent by J. Chaloner Smith to the Burlington Fine Arts Club exhibition of McArdell's works in 1886.

1748.

7. HALLET, BENJAMIN. After T. Jenkins.

W. L., standing, playing the violoncello, in short frock and petticoats, hair curled, looking to l. at music on a stand ; the l. hand supports the violoncello, and the bow is in his r. ; behind is seen wall, with pillar on r. $15\frac{1}{2}$ by $11\frac{3}{4}$.

In engraved lettering : "Tho^s Jenkins Pinx^t J^s M^c Ardell Fecit Benjamin Hallet A Child not five Years Old, who under the Tuition of M^r Oswald Performed on the Flute at Drury Lane Theatre An^o 1748. for 50 Nights with extraordinary Skill & Applause, and in the following Year was able to Play his part in any Concert on the Violincello." B. M. (Burney, vol. iv., p. 68; E.; Cheyl.).

8. CORAM, THOMAS. After W. Hogarth.

Born 1668, died 1751. Master of a merchantman.

To waist, in oval, looking to f.; own hair, white neckerchief, large cape worn over waistcoat, three buttons of which are unfastened. $12\frac{1}{4}$ by 10.

- II. Inscribed with engraved lettering: "Will^m Hogarth Pinx^t Ja^s M^e Ardell Fecit. Captain Thomas Coram. Upon whose Petition and Sollicitation The Royal Charter, for y^e Foundling Hospital, was Granted by His Majesty King George y^e Second, 17 of October, 1739." In scratched letters under "Fecit" is the date "1749." B. M. (M.).
- III. "Price 2s." in scratched lettering, added at bottom to r.
J. C. S.
- IV. The plate retouched. J. C. S.
- V. Line of publication altered to: "Published 12th May 1794 by Laurie & Whittle, 53 Fleet Street, London." B. M. (Cheyl.).

1749.

9. BOYD, LADY. After A. Ramsay.

Rebecca, daughter of Alexander Lockhart, of Craighouse, a Lord of Session by the style of Lord Covington; married 1749, as his first wife, James, Lord Boyd, eldest son of William, 4th Earl of Kilmarnock; he succeeded, 1758, as 15th Earl of Erroll. Lady Boyd, then Countess of Erroll, died 1761.

Nearly w. l., as Diana, standing, looking f.; she holds a spear in her r. hand, with her l. she is pointing out the quarry to a dog which runs in front of her; she wears a crescent ornament and pearls in her hair and a mantle over l. shoulder; landscape in distance r. $12\frac{5}{8}$ by $9\frac{3}{4}$.

Inscribed: "A. Ramsay Pin^x. Ja^s M^c Ardell fecit Lady Boyd Price 2 Shill." B. M. (P.; Cheyl.). Chaloner Smith gives the date "1749" after "fecit," but it does not appear in either of the B. M. impressions.

Painted 1749.

10. GOOCH, THOMAS. After T. Hudson.

Born 1674, died 1754. Master of Caius College, Cambridge, 1716; successively Bishop of Bristol (1737), Norwich (1738), and Ely (1743); became 2nd baronet on his brother's death in 1751.

Nearly w. l., sitting, dir. r., looking to f.; own hair, robes; his r. elbow rests on table to l., his l. hand is on knee. Arms in centre of inscription space. $12\frac{3}{8}$ by $9\frac{7}{8}$.

I. Before any inscription or arms. J. C. S.

II. Engraved inscription: Thos^s Hudson pinx^t J^s M^c Ardell fecit. The Right Reverend D^r Thomas Gooch, Lord Bishop of Ely, A.D. 1749. [in scratched lettering:] Price 2s." B. M. (P.; Cheyl.).

1751.

16. HONYWOOD, SIR PHILIP.

After B. Dandridge.

Made K.B., 1742; appointed general, 1743; died at Blackheath, 1752.

The castle seen in the first three states represents the ramparts and gate of Portsmouth looking towards Southsea Common.

W. L., on horseback, dir. l., looking f.; uniform, ribbon and star of the Bath, holding bâton in r. hand, reins in l.; two mounted soldiers attend the general; behind, to r., a castle with raised drawbridge; cavalry in distance. $18\frac{1}{2}$ by 14.

- I. In engraved lettering: "B. Dandridge Pinxt 1751. Ia^s M^c Ardell Fecit. S^r Philip Honywood, Knight of the most Honourable Order of the Bath, General of Horse, Colonel of his Majesty's first Regiment of Dragoon Guards, Governour of Portsmouth &c. Sold by Ja^s M^c Ardell, at the Golden Head in Covent Garden. Price 5 Shillings." B. M. (Cheyl., two impressions; one is very brilliant, but cut; the other good and intact).
- II. With a chain from drawbridge to loophole in wall of castle to r. B. M. (P.; Cheyl.).
- III. The chain, "made larger and more conspicuous." J. C. S.
- IV. The plate altered; soldiers and castle erased, a tent in their place; subject altered to Prince Ferdinand of Brunswick; r. arm extended, holding a bâton; battle raging in background; inscription erased, except engraver's name; a fore leg of one of the attending soldiers' horses is still visible. B. M. (Cheyl.).

Prices:

Addington sale, May, 1886, state II., £1 15s.

*Painted 1751.*17. COVENTRY, MARIA (GUNNING), COUNTESS OF. After F. Cotes.

Born about 1733, died of consumption 1760. The eldest and loveliest of the three beautiful Gunning sisters. Married 1752, as his first wife, George William, 6th Earl of Coventry.

To waist, in oval frame, dir. l., looking f.; pearls in hair, which is curled at back; patch on r. cheek; low-necked dress, trimmed with bows; white scarf across r. shoulder. $10\frac{1}{2}$ by 9.

I. Masked proof, before the alteration in outline of l. shoulder.

B. M. (Cheyl.).

II. In engraved lettering: "Fran^s Cotes Pinx^t 1751. Ja^s M^c Ardell Fecit. Maria Countess of Coventry Publish'd according to Act of Parliament." B. M. (P.).

22. BUCKINGHAM, GEORGE VILLIERS, 2ND DUKE OF, AND HIS BROTHER LORD FRANCIS VILLIERS.

After Sir A. Van Dyck.

Sons of George Villiers, 1st Duke of Buckingham (who was assassinated by John Felton, August 23rd, 1628), by Catherine, daughter of the Earl of Rutland. The Duke (born January 30th, 1627-8, died 1687) has been immortalized as Zimri in Dryden's Absalom and Achitophel. Lord Francis Villiers (born posthumously April 2nd, 1629, died 1648) fell in the Civil War, near Kingston.

W. L.s, standing; the Duke on l., dir. slightly r., looking f., with r. hand placed on hip; Lord Francis Villiers on r., dir. f., looking l., r. hand held to breast; both dressed alike, with lace collar and shoes with large rosettes, hair long; curtain background l., landscape seen through window r. 17 $\frac{1}{4}$ by 13 $\frac{7}{8}$.

- I. Before the plate was cleaned, unfinished. B.M. (E.).
- II. Finished, before inscription. B.M. (E. ; Clarendon ; Cheyl.).
- III. With engraved lettering: "George Duke of Buckingham with his Brother Francis, 1636. To his Grace Charles Duke of Grafton, &c. This Plate is humbly Inscrib'd by his Graces most Oblidg'd Servant James M^cArdell. Done by Ja^s M^cArdell from a Capital Picture of Van Dyck in the Royal Pallace at Kensington, 1752." B.M. (E. ; P. ; M. ; Cheyl.).

1752.

23. HAMLYN, ZACHARY. After J. Highmore.

Born 1678, died 1759. Of Clovelly Court, Devon. The mansion house at Clovelly was burnt down in 1789, when the original picture by Highmore was destroyed.

To knees, standing, dir. r., looking to f.; short wig; plain dark coat, buttoned; r. hand within coat; l. hand on walking-cane; table with papers to l.; curtain above. 12 $\frac{1}{2}$ by 10.

Inscribed: "Jos: Highmore Pinxit Ja^s M^cArdell Fecit 1752."

Sir William Drake (at Burlington Fine Arts Club exhibition of Mc Ardell's works, 1886).

Chaloner Smith describes this plate as representing Samuel Richardson (No. 161), "for there is a mole on each cheek, placed in precisely similar positions in both prints"; but on comparing the two, it will be seen that they are different persons.

1752.

24. DOUCE, FRANCIS. After W. Keable.

Born about 1675, died insane 1759. Originally a surgeon, he was admitted a licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians, 1735, and created M.D. by the university of Aberdeen, 1750. The well-known antiquary of the same names was his grandnephew (not grandson), and possessed much of his relative's eccentricity.

To waist, in oval, dir. slightly r., looking to f.; wig, plain dark coat. $10\frac{5}{8}$ by $8\frac{7}{8}$.

In engraved lettering: "William Keable Pinx^t Ja^s McArdell Fecit 1752. Fra Douce, M.D. AEtat. 75. Sold by Eliz Bakewell, Print Seller in Cornhill." B.M. (P.; Cheyl.).

(? 1752).

25. DOUCE, FRANCIS. After W. Keable.

The same as No. 24.

W. L., on horseback, dir. r., looking f.; wearing hat, wig, gloves and riding-boots; pistol in holster of saddle; background of wall, with vase on it to l.; trees are seen in the distance. $18\frac{1}{4}$ by $13\frac{7}{8}$.

- I. Before inscription. J. C. S. (citing Musgrave Catalogue).
- II. With engraved lettering: "William Keable Pinx^t Ja^s McArdell Fecit. Fra. Douce, M.D. AEtat 75." B.M. (P.; M.; Cheyl.).

1752.

26. LOWE, THOMAS, AND MRS. CHAMBERS.
After R. E. Pine.

Lowe first appeared at Drury Lane 1740; afterwards (1745) became principal singer at Vauxhall; lessee and manager of Marylebone Gardens 1763-69 (a disastrous speculation); and finally singer at Sadler's Wells from 1772 until his death in 1783.

Of Mrs. Chambers nothing apparently is known; her personal appearance is hardly suggestive of an ideal Polly.

W.L.s, standing; Lowe on r. has his r. hand round Mrs. Chambers's waist; she has her l. hand on his shoulder. $15\frac{3}{4}$ by $11\frac{3}{4}$.

- I. In engraved lettering: "R. Pine Pinx^t J. M^cArdell Fecit. M^r Lowe and M^{rs} Chambers in the Characters of Cap^t Macheath and Polly. Fondly let me loll! &c. Act I. Scene XIII. Price 3s." B. M. (Cheyl.).
- II. With, added, in engraved lettering: "Publish'd according to Act of Parliament 1752." B. M. (Burney, vol. vi., p. 13; vol. xiii., p. 21).

Prices :

Chaloner Smith sale, March, 1887, state I., £2.

(1752.)

27. GARRICK, DAVID. After J. McArdell.

Born 1717, died 1779.

Foote's play was performed in 1752 for the benefit of James Worsdale the painter, mimic and singer, who appeared in it himself as Lady Pentweasle.

Nearly to knees, as an auctioneer, standing, dir. towards r., looking f. full flowing wig, plain dark coat, r. arm raised, hat in l. hand. $12\frac{1}{4}$ by $9\frac{7}{8}$.

In engraved lettering: "Ja^s M^cArdell delin^t et fecit. M^r Garrick in the Character of an Auctioneer, speaking the Prologue in Taste, a Comedy of two Acts, wrote by Samuel Foote Esqr.

Before this Court, I Peter Puff appear,
A Briton born, and bred an Auctioneer, &c.

London, Printed for Rob^t Sayer, N^o 53 in Fleet Street. Published as the Act directs, 20 Feby 1769." B. M. (P.; Cheyl.).

This print would seem not to have been published until after McArdell's death.

Prices :

Chaloner Smith sale, March, 1887, £5.

1753.

28. ARMSTRONG, JOHN.

Appointed Surveyor-General in 1722.

To waist, in oval, dir. r., looking f., flowing wig, neckerchief, cuirass, cloak across l. shoulder. Shield of arms on military trophy in centre of inscription space.

Inscribed : "The Hon^{ble} John Armstrong Esqr Surveyor General of his Majesty's Ordnance; Chief Engineer of England; Colonel of the Royal Regiment of Foot of Ireland, Quarter-master General, & Major General of his Majesty's Forces. ob 15 o Aprilis 1742, AEtat 69. 1753.

29. COVENTRY, MARIA (GUNNING), COUNTESS OF. After Gavin Hamilton.

(See No. 17.)

W.L., standing, dir. and looking f.; hair plainly dressed in f., curled at back; over a simple dress, with wide sleeves, she wears an embroidered robe and has a portrait-locket at her bosom; her r. elbow rests on pedestal l. on which stands a statuette of Cupid; scarf held across waist by r. hand; white rose in l. hand; background to r. of sofa and draped curtain. $19\frac{1}{8}$ by $13\frac{7}{8}$.

- I. Inscribed: "Ga Hamilton Pinxt Ja^s M^cArdell Fecit Maria Countess of Coventry. Publish'd according to Act of Parliament 1753." B. M. (Cheyl.); Mr. H. S. Theobald, K.C.; Mr. H. P. Horne.
- II. Date altered to "1754," and address added, "Sold by John Smith at Hogarth's Head, opposite Wood street, Cheapside." Mr. H. P. Horne.
- III. "Plate cut 2 at top, 4 at bottom, $1\frac{1}{4}$ at l., $2\frac{1}{4}$ at r., pillar placed instead of Cupid, subject scraped away 1 at bottom, on space: 'Hamilton Pinxt M^cArdell Fecit. Prices:

Addington sale, May, 1886, state I., £5 10s.

(? 1753.)

30. GASCOYNE, SIR CRISP. After W. Keable.

Born 1700, died 1761. Lord Mayor 1752, when he was knighted. For the righteous part which he took in the case of Elizabeth Canning (No. 40) the rabble insulted him, breaking his coach windows, and even threatening his life. The town was divided between the "Canningites" and "Egyptians," or "Gipsyites," and "Betty Canning," says Churchill in the Ghost, "was at least, With Gascoyne's help, a six months' feast."

W.L., standing, looking to f.; full wig, wearing alderman's gown over richly figured coat and fringed satin waistcoat; against table l. rests the Corporation sword, and on it lie the mace and cap; his r. hand rests on the table, his l. hangs by his side; behind him are pillar and draped curtain ; in background r. is a statue of Justice. Arms in centre of inscription space, motto : " Raison Pour Guide." $18\frac{7}{8}$ by $13\frac{3}{4}$.

- I. Before inscription or arms ; before the plate was cleaned. J. C. S. (shown at the Burlington Fine Arts Club exhibition of McArdell's works in 1886).
- II. Engraved inscription : " William Keable pinxit Ja^s M^cArdell Fecit S^r Crisp Gascoyne K^t Lord Mayor of the City of London 1753." B. M. (E.; P.; Cheyl.).

Prices :

Addington sale, May, 1886, state II., £1.

Painted 1753.

31. LADY WITH WHITE TURBAN.

After A. Ramsay.

The portrait is said, with every probability, to be that of Marshal Keith's mistress. That lady was a Swedish prisoner, an orphan named Eva Merthens, handsome and intelligent, whom Keith carefully educated. He had several children by her, and at his death in 1758, he bequeathed all he had to her ; she afterwards married and survived him fifty-three years.

To waist, in oval, dir. towards r., looking to f. ; she wears a white turban, collar, a necklace of three rows, muslin fichu, white sleeves, dark bodice, with ribbon bows. $11\frac{1}{8}$ by $8\frac{7}{8}$.

- I. Before any inscription. Mr. Fritz Reiss.
- II. In engraved lettering : " A: Ramsay Pinxit 1753 J: M^cArdell Fecit. Sold by J: M^cArdell at the Golden Head in Covent Garden. [in scratched lettering] Price 1s 6d." J. C. S. (shown at the Burlington Fine Arts Club exhibition of McArdell's works, 1886).
- III. With inscription as in state II., and, in addition : " Publish'd according to Act of Parliam^t." B. M. (M.).
- IV. Inscription erased. B. M. (E.).

Painted 1753.

32. LADY WITH EMBROIDERED SLEEVE.
After A. Ramsay.

Walpole wrote on his impression, "Mrs. Gumledon, a Finland lady."

Fully to waist, in oval, dir. to l., looking to f.; she wears a black plumed cap, earrings, and necklace with three rows, apparently of pearls, a short jacket trimmed with fur, the sleeve of which is embroidered, and ruffles. 11 by 8 $\frac{7}{8}$.

- I. In engraved lettering: "A: Ramsay Pinxit 1753 J: M^cArdell Fecit Publish'd according to Act of Parliam^t. Sold by J: M^cArdell at the Golden Head in Covent Garden. [in scratched lettering] Price 1s 6d." J. C. S.
- II. Inscription erased. J. C. S.
- III. Inscription re-engraved, address and price omitted: "A: Ramsay Pinxit 1753 J: M^cArdell Fecit Publishd according to Act of Parliam^t." B. M. (E., two impressions; M.; Chey.).

33. BARNARD, SIR JOHN. After A. Ramsay.

Born 1685, died 1764. M.P. for the City of London, 1722-1761; in Parliament he was distinguished for his ability in debate, especially on financial questions. Knighted 1732; Lord Mayor 1737.

To waist, in oval, dir. and facing r., looking f.; full wig, white neckerchief with long fall, furred gown, chain. Size of plate, 14 by 10; size of oval, 6 $\frac{5}{8}$ by 6 $\frac{1}{8}$.

Inscribed: "A. Ramsay pinxit J^s M^c Ardell fecit. To the Worthy Liverymen of the City of London, The Honour which You have done me, in choosing me fix Times one of your Representatives in Parliament, calls for my most sincere and hearty Thanks, the rather as I look upon the present Election to be the last Favour which I can expect to receive; I have not of late Years presumed to offer my Service knowing my Inability of giving that Attendance in Parliament, which this Honourable City has a Right to require from its Members. But the Continuance of your Polling for me, is a proof of your Kindness in overlooking my Failings, and of your affectionate Regard for me, the Impressions which these have made on my Heart can never be effaced, of which I beg Leave to assure You and of my best Endeavours to promote the Good of this City in particular, and of this Nation in general. I am with the greatest Respect, Gentlemen, Your highly obliged and most Obedient Humble Servant John Barnard. May 7th 1754. Publish'd according to Act of Parliament Sept^r 6th 1754. & Sold by J Boydell Engraver, at the Unicorn y^e corner of Queen Street Cheapside, London." B. M. (P.; Cheyl, two impressions).

The above is a copy of the print by the younger Faber.

39. LEWIS, MISS.

After J. S. Liotard.

According to Horace Walpole (his impression was shown by Chaloner Smith at the Burlington Fine Arts Club exhibition of McArdell's works in 1886) the portrait is that of "Mademoiselle Lavergne, niece of Mr. Liotard," and so the lady is named on a line engraving of her. She is, however, called "Miss Lewis" in states V. and VI. of this print.

To knees, sitting, with letter in her hands, dir. r., looking f.; hair simply dressed; ribbon necklace, from which hangs a crucifix; bodice with wide sleeves. 12 by 9 $\frac{7}{8}$.

Painted 1754.

40. CANNING, ELIZABETH.

After W. Smith.

A domestic servant, who accused Mary Squires, an old gipsy, of having kidnapped and starved her in January, 1753. Squires was tried and sentenced to death, but through the exertions of the lord mayor, Sir Crisp Gascoyne (No. 30), who was dissatisfied with the evidence, she obtained a free pardon. Canning was then put on her trial for perjury, and upon conviction was transported to America. She died 1773 at Weathersfield in Connecticut.

To waist, in oval frame, dir. l., looking f.; cap and bodice. $10\frac{5}{8}$ by 9.

I. Before any inscription. J. C. S.

II. In engraved lettering: "Elizabeth Canning, born Sept^r 17th, 1734. Done by M^r M^cArdell from an Original Picture painted in September 1754 by M^r Will^m Smith.

The worst oppression, who, ah who could bear,
If Virtue hov'ring Angel, was not near.

Brooke's Constantia. 1s. 6." J. C. S.

III. Inscription obliterated, but traces of it can be faintly seen.
B. M. (P.).

Painted 1754.

41. FOX, HENRY.

After J. S. Liotard.

Born 1705, died 1774. Paymaster-General 1757, and (for the second time) Leader of the House of Commons 1762. "Ill supported by his colleagues, and hated on all sides," he was glad to seek obscurity in the Upper House as Baron Holland of Foxley, Wilts, 1763.

To waist, in scrolled frame, dir. l., looking f.; wig, plain coat, embroidered waistcoat. $12\frac{3}{8}$ by $9\frac{7}{8}$.

Inscribed: "Liotard pinxit 1754. J^s M^cArdell fecit. The Right Honourable Henry Fox, Esq^r, Secretary of State. From an Original in the posseſſion of the Hon^{ble} Horace Walpole.”

J. C. S. (shown at the Burlington Fine Arts Club Exhibition of McArdell’s works, 1886).

1755.

42. GERBIER FAMILY.

After Sir P. P. Rubens.

The wife and four of the nine children of Sir Balthazar Gerbier (born about 1591, died 1667), painter, architect, courtier, and spy, a native of Middelburg in Zeeland; he was knighted by Charles I. in 1628, and appointed Master of the Ceremonies at the Court in 1641. The painting is also ascribed to Van Dyck.

W. L.s, Lady Gerbier seated in a chair, on the back of which is perched a parrot; she is looking downwards at a baby on her lap; before her is a little girl with r. arm on her mother’s knee; behind on r. an older girl stands, both children are facing f.; a boy behind them, with r. hand extended, is speaking to his mother; curtain l.; verandah supported by pilaster of mermaids r., landscape in distance. 16³₄ by 18.

- I. Before any inscription. B. M. (Cheyl., title in handwriting of Horace Walpole).
- II. In engraved lettering: “The Original Picture by S^r Peter Paul Reubens in the Collection of Samson Gideon Esq^r at Belvidere, in Kent. To whom this Print is Humbly Dedicated By His most Obedient and Devoted Servant, William Jett. Will^m Jett Delineavit. Publish’d according to Act of Parliament 1755, and Sold by Will^m Jett, Painter next Door to Mounts Coffee-house, Grosvenor Street, London. J^s McArdell Fecit.” B. M. (M.)

The picture, in its entirety, includes Gerbier himself and his five other children. John Smith in his “Catalogue Raisonné” (pt. II., p. 240; pt. III., p. 71) is wrong in saying that McArdell engraved the entire picture.

1755.

- III. The plate reworked; coronet and hair altered, larger earring, necklace of one row changed to four rows, lace obliterated. Inscription runs: "J. McArdell del^t & fec^t Charlotte Queen of Great Britain. Publish'd as the Act directs, & Sold by J. McArdell in Covent Garden." B. M. (Cheyl.).
- IV. With, in addition, after "Covent Garden": "J Bowles & Son, at the Black Horse in Cornhill, & R Sayer in Fleet Street. Feb 10th 1762." B. M. (P.; Cheyl.).

States III. and IV., as Chaloner Smith points out, might very well be taken for "another plate except for some scratches and ground which appear in all the states on inscription space to 1."

Dodd says that the portrait was painted by J. Meyer, who did the companion picture of George III. (No. 87).

1761.

85. GARRICK, DAVID. After B. Wilson.

Born 1717, died 1779.

90. GREVILLE, MISS, AND HER BROTHER.
After Sir J. Reynolds.

Frances Anne Greville, only daughter of Fulke Greville, of Wilbury, Wilts; married, 1766, John Crewe, of Crewe Hall, Cheshire (who was created Baron Crewe in 1806); died 1818. A well-known society leader and an active Whig partisan, a favourite toast being "Buff and Blue and Mrs. Crewe." The brother represented was probably William Fulke Greville, who entered the navy and died 1837. There is a scarcely credible story to the effect that his father after a quarrel with him had the Cupid in the picture replaced by a tripod.

W.L.s., she as Hebe is standing dir. l., looking to f., holding up a vase with both hands, sandals on feet; her brother as Cupid, standing on a stone, is grasping her dress in f. with his hands, and looking towards l.; trees behind, landscape l., waterfall r. 18 $\frac{1}{2}$ by 13 $\frac{3}{4}$.

- I. Before any inscription. B. M. (E.); Mr. H. S. Theobald, K.C.; Mr. Fritz Reiss.
- II. Engraved inscription: "J. Reynolds Pinxit J^s M^cArdell fecit. Publish'd according to Act of Parliament July 25th 1762. Sold at the Golden head in Covent Garden." B. M. (M. ; P. ; Cheyl.).
- III. The plate reworked, cut at bottom, and edge grounded to counterfeit proof. B. M. (Cheyl.). A state similar to this, with a "different form of tree in middle distance," was shown at the Burlington Fine Arts Club exhibition of McArdell's works in 1886, by the late Stephen Tucker, Somerset Herald.

98. COKE, MARY (CAMPBELL), VISCOUNTESS.
After A. Ramsay.

Born 1726, died 1811. Married, 1747, Viscount Coke, who soon separated from her and died 1753. Horace Walpole, who tried to be friendly with her, and dedicated to her his "Castle of Otranto," said: "Her virtue is unimpeachable, her friendship violent, her anger deaf to remonstrances. She has cried for forty people, and quarrelled with four hundred. . . . She might be happy and respected, but will always be miserable from the vanity of her views, and her passion for the extraordinary." Her ladyship's "Letters and Journals" for part of her life (1756-74) fill four massive 8vo volumes. In the introduction is told an amusing story of the theorbo, or base lute, with which she chose to be painted; as she had no ear for music her acquaintances suffered terribly from her performances.

W.L., standing, dir. l., looking f.; white satin cap with pearl trimming, lace-edged dress of the same material, pearl earring and necklace, large lute supported by r. hand; a harpsichord with open music book to l.; armchair to r.; curtain, four columns, in background. (1765).

117. CATHCART, JANE (HAMILTON), LADY, AND CHILD. After Sir J. Reynolds.

Born 1726; married Charles, 9th Baron Cathcart, 1753 (see No. 116). Died 1771.

The child is erroneously called in the inscription "Chas. Allan Cathcart," a mistake which may have arisen from the fact of the print being published fifteen years after the picture. Moreover, Charles Allan was born 1759—four years too late. In Reynolds's pocket-book (Feb., 1755) the child is referred to as "Miss Cathcart," and when the picture was paid for (23 Dec. 1755) it was entered in the Cathcart account book as that of "Lady Cathcart and the little girl." She has been wrongly identified as Mary Cathcart, afterwards Mrs. Graham, the subject of the beautiful picture by Gainsborough, but she was not born until 1757. The little girl must therefore be Jane Cathcart, born 1754, who married 1774 John, 4th Duke of Atholl.

Nearly w. l., sitting with her child on her lap, dir. slightly l., looking f.; a veil over her head, dress with wide sleeves; a greyhound sitting on r. is looking at the little girl who dangles a cap in her r. hand. 12 $\frac{1}{8}$ by 9 $\frac{7}{8}$.

I. Before any inscription, as the plate was left by McArdell. B. M. (E.).
 II. The finished plate, with engraved inscription: "Sir Jos^a

Reynolds pinx^t Ja^s M^cArdell delineavit R Houston perfecit.
 Jane Lady Cathcart, Daughter of the late Lord Archibald Hamilton and their Second Son Cha^s Allan Cathcart London, Printed for Rob^t Sayer Map & Printseller N^o 53 Fleet Street. Published as the Act directs, 10 July 1770."

Born 1641, died 1708. Eldest daughter of Sir George Hamilton, fourth son of James, 1st Earl of Abercorn; married 1663 Philibert, Comte de Grammont. The account of her beauty and intelligence, as given by her brother in his famous Memoirs of her husband, would seem to be in no wise exaggerated. Lely never wearied of painting her portrait, and justly declared it to be his best work.

Nearly w.l., probably as St. Catherine, sitting, dir. slightly to l., looking to f.; short curls, veil at back of head, earring, r. hand holding up to breast robe, palm-branch in l. hand; a fluted pillar, with a broken wheel in background to l.; a curtain r., Lely's monogram on wall before it. $17\frac{3}{4}$ by 14.

Granger and Bromley consider this a portrait of Nell Gwyn, owing, one would suppose, to the presence of a lamb. Dodd catalogues it first as a portrait of Nell Gwyn, and secondly as that of the Comtesse de Grammont (Miss Elizabeth Hamilton). It is certainly more like the countess than the actress.

Nearly w.l., sitting, dir. towards l., looking to f.; hair in short curls at front, and falling in long tresses on her shoulders; low dress; a lamb beside her, r. hand on its head, l. hand holding some grass to its mouth; landscape, waterfall and trees l. $12\frac{3}{8}$ by $9\frac{3}{4}$.

Born 1620, died 1702. East India merchant; knighted 1672; Lord Mayor 1681; M.P. for City of London 1685. The Ziloh of Dryden's "Absalom and Achitophel." Founded and endowed a grammar school at Appleby in his native county of Leicester, 1697, for the mastership of which, in 1738, Dr. Johnson was an unsuccessful applicant. While president of Christ's Hospital he built at his own cost the writing school belonging to that foundation.

Nearly w.l., sitting in lord mayor's robes with his r. elbow on the arm of the chair and his l. hand pointing, dir. r., looking f.; full wig; mace and sword behind l.; curtain r. Arms (crest rising into subject) in centre of inscription space: motto, "Non Civium Ardor." $12\frac{1}{4}$ by $9\frac{7}{8}$.

131. NETTO, DAVID. After D. Estevens.

In explanation of the print and inscription it may be mentioned that Rabbi David Nieto (as he preferred to spell his name) was born in Venice 1654, and died in London 1728. He studied at the university of Padua, where, on account of his religion, he took his degrees in physic. He was afterwards one of the preachers at Leghorn, where he wrote a treatise in Italian on the alterations of the Calendar, entitled "Pascalogia." During his residence in London he published a defence of the oral tradition, in Hebrew and Spanish, called "Matteh Dan."

Thus described by Chaloner Smith who possessed the only example at present known :

To knees, "sitting, dir. to r., facing towards and looking to f., large dark wig, bands, dark coat, peak on chin, r. hand holding pen, l. hand on large open book, with Hebrew characters, on table to r., on which lie other books, one lettered, 'Noticeas,' another 'Passalogia,' inkstand and globe, curtain in background to l., bookcase to r." Four lines in Hebrew in centre of inscription space. $15\frac{1}{4}$ by $11\frac{5}{8}$.

Inscribed : "David Estevens pinx^t I. M^oArdell Fecit. David Netto M. D. & Mathematicus Synagogæ Judæorum Lusitanenium Londinenfis Doctor Rabbinicus, ob 1727. Padua, quem Coluit, Medicum Newtonius Afris Fert Socium, Hæbreis Gloria Netto Fuit." J. C. S. (shown at the Burlington Fine Arts Club exhibition of McArdell's works in 1886).

" O Master of the Heart ! whose magick Skill
 The close Receſſes of the Soul can find,
 Can rouse, becalm, and terrify the Mind,
 Now melt with Pity, now with Anguish thrill ;
 Thy moral Page while virtuous Precepts fill,
 Warm from the Heart, to mend the Age design'd,
 Wit, Strength, Truth, Decency are all combin'd,
 To lead our Youth to Good, and guard from Ill
 O long enjoy what thou so well hast won,
 The grateful Tribute of each honest Heart,
 Sincere, nor hackney'd in the Ways of Men ;
 At each distrefſful Stroke their true Tears run ;
 And Nature, unsophisticate by Art,
 Owns and applauds the Labors of thy Pen."

165. CUNNE SHOTE.

After F. Parsons.

This picturesque looking savage, one of the Cherokee Embassy, is depicted in the dress worn by him when received at Court by George III. in 1762. One of his fellows is said to have embraced the good-natured young king in a transport of pleasure and affection.

To waist, dir. slightly l., looking f., wearing a feather on his head, medals on his neck, gorget on which is inscribed "G. R. III," shirt with a band across r. arm, hand holding a knife, robe across l. shoulder; palm-tree behind. $12\frac{1}{8}$ by $9\frac{7}{8}$.

Inscribed: "F. Parsons pinx^t J^s M^cArdell fecit. Cunne Shote, the Indian Chief, A great Warrior of the Cherokee Nation. Sold at the Golden Head, in Queen Square, Ormond Street. Pr. 2s. 6d." B. M. (P., American).

166. COLLINS, EMANUEL. After N. Hone.

One of these names published at Bristol a volume of "Miscellanies in Prose and Verse" (4to, 1762), and described himself as "A. B. Late of Wadham College, Oxon." The official register has, however, an entry to the effect that he matriculated 1729 at the age of 17 as a member of Hart Hall, and did not graduate.

To waist, in an oval, dir. r., looking f.; wig, bands, gown. $10\frac{5}{8}$ by 9.

I. In engraved lettering: "N. Hone pinx^t J^s M^cArdell fecit
The Rev^d M^r Eman^l Collins A.M.

On me when Coxcombs are Satyric,
I take it for a Panegyric,
Hated by Fools, and Fools to hate;
Be this my Motto, and my Fate.

CATALOGUE OF ETCHINGS

197-8. DESCAZEUX, THE CHEVALIER MICHAEL DU HALLEY.

Born 1710 in Paris, died 1775 in London. A little French oddity who took refuge in England after a duel; he usually carried his sword with him on the chance of meeting his former antagonist.

McArdell etched two portraits of him, his only known works in this method.

197.—I. W.L., standing, dir. and looking f., with dog fawning on l. knee, three ribbons tied to collar on which is inscribed “Fidelis Fideli Fidens”; three-cornered hat, own hair, moustache and peaked beard, coat buttoned except for about three buttons at waist to show watch, knee breeches, buckled shoes, sword-cane in r. hand surmounted by serpent and dove, ribbon below on which is inscribed “Serpens Columba,” ring on little finger; l. hand to face, forefinger pointing to eye. $7\frac{3}{4}$ by $6\frac{1}{4}$.

Engraved at top: “The Chevalier Du Halley Descazeaux drawn by Publick Fancy, walking (Sick & Stout) Prisoner for Debts (& without Debts) in the Fleet Prison.” At bottom:

“It is here indeed (without Vanity,)
The Form of a Great Man in Adversity.

Cij vous voijés en Verité,
Vn Grand Homme en Adversite.

J. M^cA. * * * fecit et perfecit, from the famous painting in y^e Fleet.” B. M. (P.).

198.—II. W.L., standing, in the same attire as before, but with less hair ; two swords of unequal length in l. hand ; r. hand thrust in the pocket of his coat ; the dog is absent. 7 by $4\frac{1}{8}$.

No inscription. B. M. (P.).

Chaloner Smith describes a state of what he calls the "smaller etching" as follows : "W.L., standing, with dog to l., cane and sword in l. hand. J. M^o Ardell inv^t et fculp^t"; at top "The Second Edition."

Cross

Lo rambling Teague, with Vacant Visage Joggs
Far from his Barren wilds and Native Boggs.
A Link Boy points the Thoughtless Oaff his Way,
So Will O' th Wisp oft leads the Kern Astray ;
A nymph and Bawd his wandring footsteps Wait,
And leave his pockets empty as his pate ;
The raving rakehell finds too late his Loss,
Then curfes night intrigues and Charing Crofs.

226. FLOUR MILL INTERIOR.

After J. I. Richards.

Richards was for many years principal scene-painter at Covent Garden. The above is one of the scenes from "The Maid of the Mill."

Size of the plate 14 by $18\frac{1}{4}$. An impression was shown by Chaloner Smith at the Burlington Fine Arts Club exhibition of McArdell's works in 1886.

227. DUBLIN, VIEWS OF. After J. Tudor.

McArdell published from the Golden Head, Covent Garden, in 1753, a set of six views of Dublin, taken from drawings by J. Tudor (J. Chaloner Smith in "Dublin University Review," vol. ii., p. 337).

McArdell's master, John Brooks, published in Dublin several prints after Tudor (cf. list in Gilbert's "History of Dublin," vol. ii., appendix iv., p. vii.).

Chaloner Smith (pt. ii., p. 835) mentions McArdell as having done a Virgin and Child from a picture by Van Dyck ; it is probably the print by the Viennese engraver in mezzotint, Jacob Mannl or Männl, after that master, an impression of which is in B. M. (Van Dyck portfolio, No. 2) ; Mannl, born about 1695, was working in 1720.

The Virgin, nearly w. l., holding the Child in her lap, is looking upwards in adoration ; while the Infant caresses Joseph's beard with His r. hand, Joseph standing on l. ; behind on r. is a draped curtain, clouds seen through window casement. $18\frac{1}{2}$ by $12\frac{7}{8}$.

CATALOGUE OF ENGRAVINGS DOUBTFULLY ASCRIBED TO McARDELL

228. COVENTRY, MARIA (GUNNING), COUNTESS OF.

Bromley (p. 305) mentions a print of the countess in a "dress with puffed sleeves." The following print (engraver unnamed) might very well be by McArdell.

To waist, in oval, dir. l., looking f., hair dressed with pearls, slashed bodice and sleeves, lace cape. 11 by 8 $\frac{7}{8}$.

- I. Inscribed: "Maria Countess of Coventry." B. M. (P.).
- II. The plate reworked, to resemble print by Spooner (No. 9 in Chaloner Smith). B. M. (P.).
- III. Worn state. J. C. S.
- IV. The plate reworked again, with hat and feathers introduced. B. M. (P.).
- V. Worn down. J. C. S.

229. DENISON, SIR THOMAS.

Born 1699, died 1765. Made a judge of the King's Bench 1741; knighted 1745.

Nearly w.l., sitting in his judge's robes, dir. slightly r., facing f.; full-bottomed wig, r. arm on table l., pointing with l. hand; draped curtain behind. Arms in centre of inscription space. 13 $\frac{3}{8}$ by 11.

I. Before inscription. B. M. (P.).

II. Modern. J. C. S.

The engraver's name has not been ascertained ; but the print is after McArdell's style.

230. HAPPY PEASANT GIRL, A.

After Jan Molenaer.

Fully to waist, a girl laughing, dir. l., looking f.; she is wearing a man's hat with a feather stuck in it and holds in her hands a wooden fife. $10\frac{3}{4}$ by $8\frac{7}{8}$.

Before any inscription. B. M. (E., royal select mezzotints, there attributed to McArdell); Mr. H. S. Theobald, K.C. Dodd also includes it in his list of McArdell's prints. The print is in every respect worthy of McArdell.

Chaloner Smith makes no mention of McArdell in connection with this print, but cites a state bearing the inscription : " Molenaar Pinx^t Johnson fecit " (pt. ii., p. 731). The name "Johnson" is probably a fictitious one.

231. LADY DRAWING ON HER GLOVE.

To waist, in oval, dir. l., looking f.; flat hat, cape, dress with low neck and bow at breast, drawing glove on l. hand with her r. J. C. S. (pt. iv., p. 1752, No. 176). $11\frac{1}{8}$ by $8\frac{7}{8}$.

On the only impression at present known someone has written " Miss Seabright," which would perhaps indicate a member of the baronet family of that name. Purcell, in his copy of the print, has turned the name into " Eyebright." The print may have been by McArdell or Houston.
